December 17, 2007

Rotary Club of Wayland, New York, D7120

Robert Oswald, president

Thomas Quinlan, secretary

Twelve members and our steadfast guests Jim Burns and Ellen Stephens attended the meeting last Tuesday.

The Miller House served us baked cod fish (or perhaps haddock) with salt potatoes and a medley of squash, carrots and beans.

Happy Bucks

George Smith was diagnosed with heart arrhythmia after several tests, which were indicated after several dizzy spells he suffered lately. Joann has now forbidden him to do any work outside, so he was glad to put in an HB with the snowy season just beginning...

President Bob put in a couple of HB, having narrowly escaped fatal punishment by his lovely wife, promising "I'm gonna kill you!" The biggest reason was a big disfiguring gash in the kitchen floor, caused by Bob's attempt to move a heavy piece of furniture by himself instead of waiting for help.

Sharon Vogt paid to try her hand at telling about a visit to Springwater. Some recognized it as a joke. It was a good one (firemen's hats on the three wise men), and like a dear old friend, it went over well. (Her Southern accent in the punch line could use a little more work.)

Bud StGeorge dared Bob Radell to better the recent success, and he would put in some money for it. Bob didn't disappoint with a report from the recent National Poetry Association. The people in the adjoining rooms must have wondered what was going on!

Announcements

President Bob repeated the invitation for the Retro Christmas Party at Cindy's and his home on the upcoming Saturday.

Next week's meeting will feature a dear old friend, PDG Bob Gaffney from the Hornell club.

Marty Kimmel had a request on behalf of the Library for more "card pockets," which was referred to the Board.

Club Assembly? (Not announced!)

Apparently, a one-man nominating committee, featuring Art Traphagen, had worked to secure candidates for president elect over the next two years. Sharon Vogt was thus voted in for next year, and George Smith for the year after. (I suppose that if we can have simplified grants, a simplified officer nomination procedure may seem natural to Art. At least we voted this time... /chronic malcontent)

50/50 now stands at $99

Bud St George had a chance, but he pulled the nine of diamonds.
